FROM SNAP SHOT TO PRO SHOT: PRACTICAL GUIDES FOR PORTRAITURE USING NATURAL LIGHT

The essential skills for taking beautiful portraits.

Cathy Joubert, a Durban based photographer, has mastered her understanding of natural light in her portraits. They are known to be clear and colourful and capture the essence of her subject.

Supported by weekly tips on her Facebook page and a website forum, the booklets will teach you the importance of using available light to gain perfect exposure. Even the most beautiful image is no good if it's too dark or not perfectly in focus.

Cathy discusses all her methods and recommends which cameras and lens are best.

Cathy's "open book" attitude is honest and full of advice that would otherwise take years of research.

"I am essentially writing a book that I wish I could have read 10 years ago. It tells you exactly where to position yourself in relation to your subject, where the light is and which lens to use at which aperture. Small changes can make huge difference in photography."

Readers of her books have expressed great enthusiasm for the project and encouraged her to run more workshops.

"I love Cathy's practical advice, she cuts out all the theory and shows you how to do it. I can't think of anything to ask, because it's all in the books!" says Edward Yeadin from Gauteng.

I have been running photography workshops for over 6 years and I have learnt a lot of what both the hobbyist and photographer need. And that is to master your focus and exposure.
